Philanthropic Travel

Discovery, challenge, breakthrough, engagement and renewal. These are the cornerstones of philanthropic travel. Edge of World Retreats' volunteerism programs takes you on journeys that enlighten you to your personal strength and selflessness while contributing skills and talents to communities across the globe. These types of sojourns cultivate profound community and connection on so many levels – within yourself, with your fellow travelers, and especially with the wildlife, natural wonders and people of the region.

In addition to learning the spiritual and cultural values of our global neighbors, you'll nurture mutual exchange while contributing your skills and talent to improve a community's quality of life. And in doing so, you'll strengthen your personal commitment to the environment and responsible conservation.

Youth Eco Programs

Edge of World Retreats provides children an experience of meaningful purpose. Our programs instill in youth the feeling of empowerment that results from taking stewardship of their lives and their planet. Through experiential learning, they'll blend and integrate with their natural surroundings and the elements around them – all while gaining a heightened awareness of heart, body, mind and spirit.

With nature as a backdrop, participants garner life skills through the mere experience of traveling to a region they've never seen before. In venturing outside their comfort zone, these youthful participants discover the true leader within themselves and learn that being a part of the whole is far more rewarding than just furthering their own self-serving needs. Combined with relevant aspects of community service, they'll experience the essence behind giving and making a difference, which solidifies within them the mission of sustainability.
